Students who take courses at a non-degree status and wish to change to degree-seeking status must go through the regular admission process. Students subsequently admitted to the degree program may not transfer more than four courses taken as a non-degree student for graduate credit.

*Audit Policy:

A student choosing to audit a course does not receive any degree credit. If attendance is satisfactory, the course number, title and audit designation will appear on the transcript. If attendance is not satisfactory, the audited course will not appear on the transcript. In no case may a student receive credit for a course that was audited unless the course is retaken for credit. The fee for an audit is the cost of one credit.

I have read and understand the information concerning the non-degree and/or audit policy:

Signature of non-degree student or auditor

2009-2010 Master of Arts in Art History tuition is $685/per credit.
