

CONTRIBUTOR NOTES

CHRISTOPHER O. BLUM is an assistant professor of history at Christendom College. In the summer of 1998, he was a participant in the National Endowment of the Humanities Summer Seminar "Gothic in the Ile-de-France." His book of translations, Critics of the Enlightenment: The French Counter-Revolutionary Tradition, will be published by ISI Books.

J. L. A. GARCIA is professor of philosophy at Boston College, having previously taught at Notre Dame, Georgetown, and Rutgers universities. He has published extensively on normative ethical theory, consequentialism, axiology, action theory, medical ethics, and race. His research has won fellowship support from the Ford Foundation and the National Endowment for the Humanities, as well as from Harvard, Notre Dame, and Boston universities.

PETER E. HODGSON is a fellow of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, and head of the Nuclear Physics Theoretical Group of the Nuclear and Particle Physics Laboratory. He has written ten books on nuclear physics and many articles on theology and science, on the philosophy of science, and on nuclear power, energy, and the environment.

J MACOUBREY HUBBARD is associate professor of philosophy at the University of St. Thomas, St. Paul, Minnesota. He obtained his Ph.D. in philosophy from Laval University (Quebec) and specializes in Aristotle's philosophy of nature and in philosophy of the mind.

MICHAEL C. JORDAN is professor of English at the University of St. Thomas, St. Paul, Minnesota and coeditor of Logos: A Journal of Catholic Thought and Culture. He earned his B.A. from St. John's College in Annapolis, and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in comparative literature from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His teaching and scholarship are in the areas of literary theory, the classical tradition, and theological aesthetics.

GERALD MALSBAR Y is assistant professor of classics and philosophy at St. Charles Borromeo Seminary in Philadelphia, and also teaches at Villanova University. He was educated at Berkeley and at the University of Toronto, where he obtained his Ph.D. in medieval studies. He has published articles on ancient language, philosophy, and culture, and has translated books from Italian and German. St. Augustine's Press recently published his new translation of Josef Pieper's Leisure, the Basis of Culture. His principal interest is in Latin.

STOBHAN NASH-MARSHALL is an assistant professor in the department of philosophy at the University of St. Thomas. She received doctorates in philosophy from l'Università Cattolica di Milano and Fordham University. Her publications include Persona ed Essere (Milano: Guerini e Associati, 1999); Joan of Arc: A Spiritual Biography (New York: Crossroad, 1999); Participation and the Good: A Study in Bioethian Metaphysics (New York: Herder & Herder, 2000). This coming fall she will publish La Ricettività dell'Intelletto with Guerini e Associati, Milano.

GIULIO SILANO is associate professor of Christianity and culture at St. Michael's College in the University of Toronto, and coordinator of the college's Mediaeval Studies Programme. He is currently completing translations of Peter Lombard's Sentences and of Gratian's Decretum and its ordinary gloss.

Logos: A Journal of Catholic Thought and Culture

CALL FOR PAPERS

We seek a readership that extends beyond the academy and invite submissions in literature, philosophy, theology, history, the natural and social sciences, art, music, public policy, and the professions.

Manuscript deadlines for forthcoming issues are:

September 1, 2001

May 1, 2002

For complete contributor guidelines and highlights from issues, please visit our Web site at www.stthomas.edu/cathstudies/Logos

SEND ARTICLES TO:

Pamela McClanahan

Managing Editor, Logos

University of St. Thomas

2115 Summit Avenue, #57P

St. Paul, MN 55105-1096

Phone: (651) 962-5702; fax (651) 962-5710

e-mail: Logos@stthomas.edu

Work as Key to the Social Question

September 13-15, 2001
Sala del Sinodo, Vatican City

In light of John Paul II's Laborem Exercens, experts from around the world in theology, business, economics
and other related areas will explore the social dimensions of work.

www.stthomas.edu/cathstudies/cst/mgmt/le/

Sponsors ♦ Pontifical Council for Justice and Peace, Vatican City ♦ Center of Research for the Study of the Social Doctrine of the Church, Catholic University of the Sacred Heart, Rome, Italy ♦ John A. Ryan Institute for Catholic Social Thought, The Center for Catholic Studies, University of St. Thomas, St. Paul, Minnesota,
USA ♦ The Centre for Catholic Social Thought,
Catholic University, Leuven, Belgium ♦ Peter J. Tobin
School of Business, St. Johns University, New York, New York, USA