Social Sciences

The major in the social sciences is intended for the liberal arts student who wishes to become familiar with the perspective of the four disciplines traditionally defined as the social sciences – economics, history, political science, and sociology – and who wishes at the same time to study more intensively one of those disciplines. In requiring both introductory and advanced courses in each of the disciplines, irrespective of the area of concentration, the major provides both opportunity and challenge for the student seriously interested in understanding the order, structure and interrelationships involved in human behavior.

Johnson (PSY), director

The Associated Colleges of the Twin Cities (ACTC) offers a cooperative major in Women's Studies. The purpose of this inter-college (Augsburg, Hamline, St. Catherine, St. Thomas), inter-departmental major is to enable students to examine critically women's contributions and experiences in various historical and cultural contexts.

Students in the program deepen their understanding of the artistic, economic, domestic, spiritual, intellectual and political communities to which women of various ages, classes and societies belong. They also learn how to analyze the social forces and assumptions which have shaped women's lives on individual, national and global levels.

A flexible, interdisciplinary program which combines theoretical, practical and research components, it provides preparation both for advanced study and for professional work, for example, in organizations focusing on women and in human relations departments of corporations.
