George and Alice Moskalik
Lifetime-Giving Society

Who are George and Alice Moskalik?

“I have been blessed with many things in my life – an outstanding family, a successful working career and many friends. I believe that the Catholic values taught to me by my family that were reinforced through my experiences over the last 58 years with this great Catholic institution have played a key role in making all this happen.”

— George Moskalik upon receiving the Monsignor James Lavin Award, St. Thomas Day, 1994

George ’39 and Alice Moskalik have been friends of the University of St. Thomas for more than 60 years – as donors, volunteers and vocal supporters. George was an active member on the Alumni Association Board of Directors from 1985 to 1991 and is a longtime volunteer for the Alumni Association. He co-founded the Alumni Association’s very successful First Friday Speaker Series, which started in 1991. In 1987, George and Alice received the joint honor of serving as alumni homecoming king and queen. And in 1994, George’s dedication to the university was recognized when he was chosen to receive the Monsignor James Lavin Award.

For more than 15 years, George and Alice have been members of the President’s Council, whose members are recognized for giving annual gifts of $1,000 or more to St. Thomas. Also, they are members of the William and Elizabeth Finn Heritage Society, which honors benefactors who include St. Thomas in their estate plans.

George and Alice Moskalik’s generosity, kindness and humility are an inspiration to the St. Thomas community, and we thank them for their dedication to the University of St. Thomas.

Supporting St. Thomas for Life

Supporters of the University of St. Thomas choose to give of their financial resources for a variety of reasons. Many support the university’s mission and its Catholic tradition. Often, alumni and parents are nostalgic for their experiences and want their children or others to experience the same types of life-changing moments that they did at St. Thomas. George and Alice Moskalik might tell you that giving back simply is the right thing to do – and they have been doing so for more than 50 years.

Under the leadership of the Student Legacy Program, a St. Thomas student club that is devoted to philanthropy, the university launched the George and Alice Moskalik Lifetime-Giving Society in 2010. Named in honor of the Moskaliks’ lifetime support of St. Thomas, the Moskalik Society is made up of St. Thomas donors who pledge to support the university annually throughout their lives.

Why was the Moskalik Society created?

Members of the Student Legacy Program wanted to show their appreciation to St. Thomas and encourage others to commit their financial support throughout their lives. They understood the importance of supporting their alma mater alongside friends of the university who already give to the university in large numbers.

“Because of those who came before us, like George and Alice Moskalik, St. Thomas students have the ability to enjoy the amazing benefits and opportunities that the university provides through its beautiful campus, faculty members, and fellow students. It is now our turn to continue in the tradition of giving to help pave the road for future students, and the Moskalik Society helps to promote the importance of lifetime giving.”

— Tierney Singer ’12, Student Legacy President

What am I promising to do through this lifetime-giving pledge?

You make a commitment to support the University of St. Thomas with a gift of any size each fiscal year (July 1-June 30). It’s that simple!

Why is it important to give to St. Thomas every year?

• Sharing the St. Thomas story with alumni and other friends is important, and the university does this in a variety of ways throughout the year to encourage giving to St. Thomas. Communicating the needs of students and the institution requires many resources, so the more that St. Thomas can do to retain donors from year to year, the more resources will be conserved for the benefit of students.

• It is very important to have strong support from alumni, especially, because the rate of alumni participation influences national rankings among peers institutions.

• Being able to show a high percentage of alumni who give back to St. Thomas also helps the university to secure grants and other funding.

What are the benefits of being a Moskalik Society member?

All donors who pledge to give annually to the university and do so through gifts of any size are recognized as Moskalik Society members in the university’s annual stewardship report.
