

CONTRIBUTOR NOTES

CATHERINE CRAFT-FAIRCHILD is a professor of English at the University of St. Thomas. She has published articles on film in Woolf Studies Annual and The Journal of Religion and Film. She is currently completing a book, The Vatican at the Movies: The Catholic Church's Changing Relationship to Cinema in the Twentieth Century, which both traces the history of Catholic responses to cinema and offers detailed studies of selected Catholic filmmakers.

MICHAEL P. FOLEY is an assistant professor of Patristics in the Great Texts Program at Baylor University and author of Why Do Catholics Eat Fish on Friday? The Catholic Origin to Just About Everything (New York: Palgrave Macmillan, 2005). Though he specializes in Augustinian thought, Foley has written several articles on films such as Groundhog Day, which have appeared in Touchstone Magazine and Best Christian Writing 2006. Forthcoming books include a four-volume translation and commentary of St. Augustine's Cassiciacum dialogues (University of Notre Dame Press, 2007) and a revised edition of Frank J. Sheed's translation of the Confessions (Hackett, fall 2006).

H. WENDELL HOWARD is professor emeritus of English at St. John Fisher College in Rochester, New York. He is also retired as a choral conductor, a forty-year career that he began after receiving a diploma in voice from the Julliard School of Music. He earned his PhD in English and music from the University of Minnesota. As an author, he has published over 150 articles, poems, and chapters in books, and his work has appeared several times in the pages of Logos.

IAN KER is a member of the Oxford theological faculty. He has published twenty books on Newman including John Henry Newman: A Biography (1988). His most recent book is The Catholic Revival in English Literature, 1845–1961 (2003).

DOMINIC MANGANIELLO earned his BA from McGill and his PhD from Oxon. He is a professor of English literature at the University of Ottawa. He is the author of Joyce's Politics (1980), T.S. Eliot and Dante (1989), and coauthor of Rethinking the Future of the University. He has also published articles on Chesterton, Tolkien, C. S. Lewis, Dorothy L. Sayers, Walter Miller, Jr., Wilde, McLuhan, and the biblical tradition in English literature.

VIRGIL NEMOIANU is William J. Byron Distinguished Professor of Literature and Ordinary Professor of Philosophy at the Catholic University of America in Washington, DC. He is the author or editor of over fifteen books and has published approximately six hundred scholarly articles, reviews, and presentations on four continents. He is a member of the European Academy of Arts and Sciences.

KATHLEEN CURRAN SWEENEY is a freelance writer who has worked for several years in the pro-life arena. She holds a master's in theological studies from the John Paul II Institute for Studies on Marriage and Family and a master's in history from the University of Washington. Sweeney has published articles on pro-life topics, bioethics, education, and history. Recent articles, published in Linacre Quarterly, include "The Technical Child: In Vitro Fertilization and the Personal Subject" (May 2003) and "A Little Child Shall Lead Us: Theology of the Child" (forthcoming in 2006). She is married and the mother of two children. She resides in Arlington, VA.